Attiki Prefecture

Access

By bus
Bus station Kifissos (KTEL): This is the central bus station connecting Athens with most cities of Greece. It is located at 100 Kifissou Avenue Str. and it can be accessed by the bus lines X93 from "Eleftherios Venizelos" airport, 051 from Omonia and 420 from Piraeus.
Tel.: (+30) 210 5124910-11, 5132601
Bus station Liosion (KTEL): The station is located at 26 Stratigou Dagkli Str. and there are several itineraries to neighboring prefectures of Attica. It can be easily accessed since there is a large number of bus lines passing by the station, such as X93, 420, 701, 704, A10, B10 et al.
Tel.: (+30) 210 8317186
You can call 14505, where recorded information for all the bus stations (KTEL) and the itineraries are provided.

By train
TRAINOSE and OSE: TRAINOSE is the suburban railway company and OSE is the traditional railway company. There are itineraries that connect Attica with central and smaller cities.
Tel.: 14511 (recorded messages)
www.trainose.gr and www.ose.gr

By boat: The prefecture of Athens has three ports to service the passengers' wants. The largest one, the port of Piraeus, is located closer to Athens and thence depart most of the ships. Then follow the ports of Rafina (40km from Athens) and Lavrio (60km from Athens), which have less traffic and itineraries only to certain islands of the Aegean Sea.

Port of Piraeus: It can be easily accessed due to its close distance from Athens. Moreover, the easiest way to get there is by electric-powered train, whose terminal station is located across the port. The passengers can also take the Suburban Railway, whose terminal station is a few meters away from the station of the electric powered train. Moreover, a large number of buses connect the port with several areas of Athens and the suburbs, while it is connected with the airport via the bus line X96.
Tel.: 14541 (for itineraries, changes or delay information)
www.olp.gr

Port of Rafina: To the east of the prefecture of Attica, on the coast Andreas Papandreou is located the port of Rafina. The port can be accessed either by private means or by the itineraries of the bus station (KTEL) of Attica, from where ships depart for Andros, Syros, Tinos, and Mykonos.
Tel.: (+30) 22940 23605, 22840
www.rafinaport.gr

Port of Lavrio: Nearly at the southest part of Attica, shortly after Sounio, lies the port of Lavrio. It can be accessed either by car or by taxi or by bus (bus station (KTEL) Attica). The port of Lavrio is 60km from Athens and 25km from "El. Venizelos" airport. Moreover, this port has several itineraries to Kea, Lesvos, Limnos, Chios and some other islands of the Aegean Sea.
Tel.: (+30) 22920 27711, 22089
www.oll.gr

By plane: "Eleftherios Venizelos", the national airport of Athens, is located in Spata and is one of the most modern airports. It can be accessed by the following public means of transport: the Suburban Railway, the Metro (blue line), and the bus lines X95 from Syntagma Square, X96 from Piraeus, X93 from the bus station Kifissos and X97 from the metro station Dafni.
Tel.: (+30) 210 3530000
www.aia.gr

Domestic transportation

Means of transport in Athens and Piraeus: The public transport in Athens and Piraeus accommodates almost every corner of the city. In particular, there are:

- The buses (ETHEL) and the trolley buses
- The Attic Metro, which is the fastest mean of transport in Athens
- The Electric-powered Railway, which connects the northern suburbs with the port of Piraeus and is also connected with the two Metro lines.
- Moreover, there are two tram lines that connect Piraeus with the center of Athens and the southern coastline from Piraeus till Voula.
- For itineraries information, you can contact the Urban Transport Organization of Attica in the telephone numbers 185 and (+30) 210 8200999
  www.oasa.gr

Bus station Attica (KTEL): The destinations within the prefecture are accommodated by the point of departure in Athens and specifically at Mavromateon in Pedion of Areos (railway station "Victoria") and at the Agion Asomaton Square in Thissio (railway station "Thissio").
Tel.: (+30) 210 8808080
You can also call 14505, where recorded information are provided for all the bus stations (KTEL) and the itineraries.

Hydra

Access

By boat: Hydra is connected to Piraeus with closed type speedboats, so you can in one hour and 30 minutes reach the island. The frequency of service varies depending on the season. Is also connected with the other islands of the Saronic Gulf, Spetses and Poros and also with Hermione and Porto Heli of Argolida prefecture.
Piraeus Port Authority: (+30) 210 4593104
Hydra Port authority: (+30) 22980 52279

By car: You can get with your vehicle up to Metohi, an area in Argolida, facing the Hydra. From there often depart boats to Hydra. Alternatively you can use the marine taxi.

Domestic transportations

In Hydra there are no cars and all transport are conducted either by foot or on donkeys.
Taxi boats: For getting around the island you can use taxi boats, as well as for your transition to neighboring islands of the Saronic Gulf and the Peloponnese.

Marinas: If you are visiting Hydra by boat you can anchor in the main harbor, where you can refuel. Depending on weather there are other places you can anchor.

Fokida Prefecture

Access

By car: The drive from Athens is relatively straightforward, at least as far as Arachova, since the road network is modern and reasonably well-maintained. Past Arachova, the road leading to Delphi and then to Amfissa is slightly more challenging, but not insurmountable by any means. This is also the case should you be approaching from the Peloponnese. Naturally, exercise appropriate caution in winter conditions.
Amfissa, the capital of the prefecture is 204 kilometers distant from Athens, 362 kilometers from Thessaloniki, 118 kilometers from Patras, 70 kilometers from Lamia, 94 kilometers from Nafpaktos, 32 kilometers from Gravia, 24 kilometers from Delphi, 30 kilometers from Galaxidi and 13Kilometers from Itea.

By bus: Alongside the local city buses, there are daily departures from Amfissa via the intercity bus system (KTEL) for all major Greek cities, including all the most important cities of the prefecture.
For detailed departure information, you can visit www.ktel-fokidas.gr or call on:
(+30) 22650 28226 for KTEL Amfissa
(+30) 210 8316927 for KTEL Athens
(+30) 22650 82317 for KTEL Delphi

By boat: Fokida is also accessible by boat. If traveling along the north coast of the Peloponnese by car, you can cross over the Gulf of Corinth via the daily ferry service connecting Aigio with Agios Nikolaos. The crossing takes about one hour. The marinas of Itea and Galaxidi welcome visiting yachts; home as well as to local caiques available to take you on an expedition among the nearby islets.

For more information call:
(+30) 26910 28888 for Aigio Port Authority
(+30) 22660 31132, 31854 for Agios Nikolaos Ferry Service
(+30) 22650 32319, 35220 for Itea Port Authority
(+30) 22650 41390 for Port Station of Galaxidi

Domestic transportation

While certainly the most flexible mode of transport about the region is by private car, there are also taxi services available. The intercity bus system (KTEL) is also quite good, connecting the villages with the most important cities of the prefecture.
Amfisssa Taxi Dispatch: (+30) 22650 28600

Marinas: If you are exploring the coast of Fokida by yacht, the ports and marinas of Itea, Galaxidi and Trizonia will welcome you and provide you with water and fuel.

Viotia Prefecture

Access

By car: Viotia Prefecture is located in Central Greece and Livadeia is the capital. It borders with Attiki Prefecture and as a result the access from Athens is quite easy. The distance is approximately 135km, i.e. around one and a half hour. From Thessaloniki the distance is around 358km, i.e. 4-5 hours. The distance from Lamia is 95km, from Larisa 235km and from Volos 200km.

By plane: There isn't an airport in the prefecture and if you want to travel by plane the best choice is Athens airport with daily flights from the whole Greece, but also from the most countries abroad. From the airport you can take the bus X93 to Kifisos Buses and from there reach Viotia Prefecture.
